HOMESCHOOLING MOM OF 30 YEARS WITH A DESIRE TO SEE YOU BECOME A CONFIDENT DECISION MAKER

Michele is a homeschooling veteran with 30 years of homeschooling experience that includes graduating six kids (four went on to earn college degrees and the other two are current college students). Additionally, she is homeschooling her youngest two (yep! she's got 8 kids) which means she's up-to-date on the current trends in the homeschooling community.

Michele understands the numerous decisions on a homeschool mom's radar and the responsibility they carry. Michele believes that with a defined purpose, clear goals, and articulated expectations, homeschooling moms can create a framework that empowers them to say "no" to the good and "yes" to the best for their family's unique situation and needs.

Married to her high school sweetheart, Ed, Michele lives in the Chicagoland area where she started and led a homeschool co-op that is still going strong 20 years later averaging 150 – 200 kids each year.

Over the years, Michele has coached hundreds of women from diverse backgrounds and in various stages of homeschooling, as well as has led 60+ workshops about starting to homeschool, homeschooling high school students, scheduling your homeschool week, and creating a vision for your homeschool.

She also co-founded and currently sits on the Board of Directors for a non-profit charity that serves her local community.
